replenishment) and Dragon Force (for enhanced defense) learned. HP Plus, MP Plus and Luck Plus (for a better chance of critical hit) Matter are also like the high-end Restore Matter. If a player's matter is lost or loses all of their MP due to should have some useful items to compensate for. In endgame potions and X-Potions you can easily get through the W-Item duplication error, or stolen/dropped from enemies in the Northern Cave. For a more physical and aggressive strategy, it is recommended to use double cut or slash-all. If the Slash-All is upgraded to Flash, the player can immediately send most enemies in one turn. It is also useful to place the fighter in the back row to deal less damage and use long-range matter (or characters with long-range weapons). Materia and Sneak Attack counter-attack equipment allows the player to perform more turns, and equipping multiple Counterattacks materia at once also accumulates. Battles won't reward an EXP, AP, or item player, so it's a good thing to prioritize defending against the number of Materia slots when choosing armor; For example, Gigas Armet (stolen from Gigas), Adaman Bangle (stolen from Adamantaimai), and even Ziedrich (stolen from the Turks: Rude) are good for Battle Square because of its high defense, despite having several Materia slots. One of the best possible armors to use is Mystile (found in Midgar during a visit to Part 2 and the Northern Cave), as its defenses and magical defenses avoid speed are high. Most status effects, both positive and negative, move to subsequent battles, so if a player throws Haste or Big Guard in the first battle, Rush will carry out the entire match. Regeneration is a useful way to maintain HP without the need for repeated treatment. The death sentence does not go to subsequent battles (even if a fellow state countdown Slow-numb does not). If you face Tonberry, you can easily become insensitive by throwing Death Force with Enemy Skill Materia, which makes Tonberry's immediate death move omitted. If a player breaks a weapon, they can use the Goblin Punch from the Enemy Skill Matter to bypass the effect, although they will only do 75% of the normal attack (however, they can deal critical hits), and the player must be careful not to get the All Break Handicap, at least not in the early stages. Since the handicap time that earns the most BP is in the seventh and eighth matches, and the handicap types that earn the most BP are Magic Materia Breaks and All Materia Breaks, the highest BP combination cannot be won with Escape magic, only Smoke Bomb items. If the All Lucky 7s effect is activated in the Battle Square, the player will enter the next battle with 7777 HP after sending enemies, but without the All Lucky 7s effect. One command reactivates it. A reasonable strategy for success in The Golden Saucer is to enter with a full LIMIT indicator and Mime command. The player can imitate their Limit Break for each round as long as the command matter does not break and the counter is not set. Another effective method of completing the Battle Square is to equip the following matter and combination: Magic Counter connected to Odin, enemies enemies First attack so often, the magic combination of Counter-Odin allows the player to eliminate entire rounds of enemies without taking action. Odin can also be associated with Sneak Attack. Independent Counter Attack Matter as well as Counter Materia Support can also be used for great effect. After capturing Highwind in Part 2, there is a quarter chance of confronting the Ghost Ship's enemy in the final round, which can use Goanna's ability to throw the player out of battle. Using L4 Suicide or throwing healing objects at it can easily send a Ghost Ship. Changing the ghost ship is a unique item that the player can pass on to the Kalm traveler. Special Match[edit | edit source] If a player bought an Omnislash and A W-Summon, if the Cloud had learned Omnislash and purchased an Ultima Cloud Weapon, they could take part in a special match that only the Cloud can take part in. The receptionist comments the Cloud is probably strong enough to take on top fighters, and asks if he would like to participate in a private battle. A special match is more difficult than regular battles, and the reward is the Final Attack Material, which can be won once. The player cannot use a smoke bomb in the last round battle against Proud Clod; it will net all BPs as expected, but it won't earn Final Attack Matter. The player must eliminate all eight enemies. If a player takes part in many special battles and wins multiple special battles, they will win worthless trophy items such as Dio's autograph. After winning special battles, the ribbon will be awarded ten times, but at this point there are easier ways to get it. Rewards vary depending on the number of wins: If a player's inventory is full on the first win, the player will not receive any reward and will never be able to earn the final attack matter. In all times won, the player will receive a random reward at the following prices: Rate Reward 86/256 Autograph 86/256 Combat Diary 84/256 Gambler The enemy line-up is as follows: Other performances[edit | source] Final Fantasy demo VII[edit source] Main article: Final Fantasy VII demo Battle Square Demo The Battle Square appeared in the demo port PC Final Fantasy VII. The player must fight the monsters as the Cloud to win. Enemies fought on rounds is an assortment of the same enemies that are fought in full game after getting highwind. Final Fantasy Record Keeper[edit | edition source] The Battle Square was the focal point of the Battle Arena challenge event. The only possible goal is to track how many times one has participated in the battle arena. The tissues awarded as a reward may be a reference to advertising strategies in Japan (as well as in China and Taiwan) because locals believe it is a crass to give away ads, so they advertise by giving away items of marginal value instead. The artwork for Tissue for Final Fantasy VII has an advertisement for the Honey Bee Inn on it.
